Be A Strong Link!

Early 911 Early CPR Early AED Early Advanced Care

You're in a crowd of people and the person next to you suddenly falls over. What would you do?

Most people would immediately call 911 or request emergency assistance. This step is the first link in the Chain of Survival, a four-step intervention process which, if followed quickly and efficiently, can help save the lives of victims of Sudden Cardiac Arrest (SCA).

Presently, SCA claims over 250,000 lives yearly in the U.S., but a strong Chain of Survival could dramatically reduce this number. When each link in the Chain is effective, an estimated 40,000 lives could be saved.

Businesses

Promptly, properly administered first aid can mean the difference between life and death. OSHA regulation states, "a workplace must have a person or persons adequately trained to render first aid, unless there is an infirmary, clinic, or hospital close to the workplace." FA/CPR/AED greatly improves the chance of survival. Proper and prompt response to an injury can reduce workers comp costs.
